CYCLONE SHAKEN SRI LANKA| Nation reels from deadliest storm toll in years as rain batters northern, western provinces

Agencies
COLOMBO

Cyclone Ditwah exited Sri Lanka on Saturday afternoon after a trail of catastrophic floods and landslides, leaving the island nation in mourning.

According to the Disaster Management Centre, 123 people have been killed so far, while 130 others remain missing as search and rescue operations continue in rain-battered northern and western provinces.

The storm, which made landfall on Wednesday, unleashed record rainfall that inundated low-lying towns, severed transport links, and triggered hill-slope collapses that buried homes and displaced thousands.

Authorities intensified evacuations after the Kelani River burst its banks on Friday evening, compelling hundreds to flee to temporary shelters.

On Saturday, floodwaters continued to rise in several low-lying districts, forcing emergency evacuation orders for residents living along the river's path as it drains into the Indian Ocean near Colombo. Disaster response teams backed by the Sri Lankan armed forces deployed helicopters, rescue boats, and military vehicles to airlift marooned families, deliver medicines, and clear debris.

Disaster Management Centre Director General Sampath Kotuwegoda confirmed that 43,995 people have already been shifted to state-run welfare centres.

after their homes were destroyed or rendered unsafe by week-long rains. "Relief operations with support from the armed forces are underway," he said in Colombo, as emergency crews raced against time to restore communications and clear blocked rural roads.
